TNB eyes anti-graft certification by 2018

TENAGA Nasional Bhd (TNB) is embarking on a two-year journey to obtain an ISO 37001 certification — Anti-Bribery Management System — by the last quarter of 2018.

In a statement yesterday, chief integrity development officer Kamal Ariffin Abdullah said the certification — the first ever for a government-linked company in Malaysia — will provide international communities and investors the assurance that TNB has adequate procedures and safeguards against bribery.

"It will also enhance TNB's reputation as a corporation that possesses high integrity and an uncompromising stand against corruption," Kamal Ariffin added.

To realise this goal, it has — since February this year — been developing a TNB Corporate Integrity Management System (TCIMS), which is based on the certification.

Among others, the TCIMS covers elements such as due diligence, policies on specific high risk bribery areas, anti-money laundering and whistleblowing. — Bernama
